Petried, the four brave warriors, emerged closer to the door and further away from the light. Neapsly, they crept on. Maya was first, she was the smallest of all four, but her light and confidence would make her tallest taller than Mount Everest. Her hair was as brown as a tree trunk and as curly as a poodle's fur, followed by beautiful brown eyes. Next was Louis, his hair was light brown like a lion's fur and eyes as green as a shiny emerald glistening in the moonlight. Nicoll was after him with silky smooth blond hair and ocean blue eyes followed by sparsely pale skin. Last was Perrie. She had hair as gold as the sun and eyes as blue as the sky. She had tanned white skin. The door lay in front of them as then.

Confidently, Maya spun, faced Louis and commanded, "Quickly, grab that wooden stake and drag it into the hell hole."
"B... b... but I'm s... s... scared!" Whimpered Louis.
"Stop it!" Demanded Maya. "Shine that torch on his chest Nicoll. Hammer the stake into his heart Perrie and I'll hower this cross over it."

There was no time for the others to disagree. Their motive was ready. Now all knew what they were doing. Not everybody was sure if they wanted to do it but there was no replacements to fill in for them. It was all now in their hands.

Hearts pounding as fast as an out a cat chasing its prey, the team of young children passed the door and entered room 13. It took a few moments for their eyes to adapt to the darkness as black as the shadows of death. The scoundrels bed lay in front of them, it looked like a teleport to hell. Inside was the undead blood hovering creature also known as the vampire. His snow white skin reflected thier fears in the moonlight. Niall's torch sparkled as thier shadows danced across the room. Thier fears closed up inside of them at the sight of this beast.

Suddenly, Louis elevated the wooden pointed object and aimed it at the beast's bare back heart. Meanwhile, Niall dimmed the torch on the scoundrels bed when suddenly, the vampire's eyes fluttered in the most horrific way and then in the blink of an eye, they revealed themselves. Instantly, the villain rose up from the coffin and lunged towards the four children. They had a new plan it was to do it all but when the beast was up. Louis pierced the heart also ~~the~~ Niall flickered the torch, Perrie hammered the stake and Maya hovered the cross. Suddenly. No breaths. It was over.
